

DRIVEN RACING OILS

'Driven' engine oils are specifically for fast cars that regularly have their lubricants dropped. These oils include high anti-wear properties (e.g. zinc) and stickiness, even after lengthy storage periods. All in all, we're talking about anti-condensation lubricants suitable for modern and historic race cars.

LUME-TECHNIK LED HEADLIGHTS

Determined to improve the performance of headlights on classic 911s, Hertfordshire-based Porsche specialist, RPM Technik, has launched an LED headlight conversion kit named 'Lume-Technik'. Suitable for 911s dating from the 1960s through to the mid-1990s, the system simply replaces your car's existing light units without the need for additional transformers. That's right - Lume-Technik makes use of your 911's original wiring! As well as increasing night-time visibility through the use of super-bright LEDs, the supplied light lenses deliver a subtle, contemporary front end update to older cars. Lume-Technik has been developed in-house by RPM Technik's engineers, and the kit comes complete with a specially-fabricated mounting assembly. Further lens, bezel and unit options are available on request.

TAMIYA 934 TURBO RSR 1:24 MODEL KIT

In 1976, the 934 Turbo RSR appeared in the FIA's Group 4 racing series. Toine Hezemans drove the car to victory at the European GT Championship, and the RSR also triumphed in America's Trans-Am racing series. Around 400 examples of the three-litre belter were manufactured during a two year production cycle. Tamiya has released a 1:24 scale model kit of the RSR, complete with the orange Jägermeister livery it wore for outings in Germany's famous Deutsche Rennsport Meisterschaft sportscar series. Measuring 179mm in width, the model faithfully reflects the car's original design, including wide wheel arches, a rear wing, a roll cage, a realistic interior, suspension and chassis parts. Neat photo-etched items are also provided to further enhance detail. Get building!
